

tracking spiritual trends in the 21st century

APOLOGIA report

Apologia Report is a fantastic service to the world missions community. I read every word of every issue, and constantly find information that is valuable in my own work for the Lord. This is one of those rare ministries that raises the level of knowledge and understanding across a wide community of Christian leaders. Apologia Report has a tremendous impact that cannot be measured.

—Michael Jaffarian,
Missions Researcher, CBInternational

I direct a faculty/staff/grad-student outreach at Purdue University and find myself in need of articles, research and general info on a wide variety of religious and academic subjects. Your updates on current debates and doctrines within other belief systems have helped me to understand them. You provide research that I would likely never find for myself.

Multiculturalism. Diversity. Pluralism.

How can a Christian navigate the complex maze of spirituality in the 21st century? How can a Christian stay equipped to communicate the gospel effectively and with empathy — understanding the viewpoint of the person they're talking to? It's not easy. But Apologia Report can help.

Apologia Report is designed to provide you with weekly summaries of articles available (both in print and online) so that you can stay on top of breaking news and developing spiritual trends. It is an invaluable time-saving resource especially for those in leadership positions, missions, and education.

Many of us at Dallas Theological Seminary receive Apologia Report. It is immensely strategic and helpful. Apologia Report creatively sifts through reams of information and makes available only "briefs" of newsworthy current issues and events, but also gives me the websites and bibliographic data I need to research further. It's like having a research assistant. I thank the Lord for this service to His church.

—Scott Horrell
Professor of Systematic Theology
